Today we have a long list of creatures that have vanished altogether. As man spread across the earth, he has destroyed wildlife by shooting, trapping, cutting and burning the forest.

One of the creatures that has become extinct in the slow moving, heavy bird dodo. It inhabited the island of Mauritius. Secure in its island home, this bird had lost the power of flight since there were no enemies to fly from. It nested on the ground in complete safety.

Then man discovered the dodo's paradise is about 1507, and with him came his evil friends — dogs, cats, pigs, rats and goats. The dodo surveyed these new arrivals with an air of innocent interest. Then the slaughter began. The goats ate the undergrowth which provided the dodo with cover. The dogs hunted them. The cats harried the old birds. The pigs grunted all over the island, eating the eggs and the young. The rats followed behind to finish the feast. Soon the fat, ungainly and harmless bird was extinct.

Many lovely and interesting animals have been so reduced in numbers that without protection and help they can never reestablish themselves. If they cannot find sanctuary where they can live and breed undisturbed, their numbers will dwindle until they join the dodo, quagga and the great auk on the list of extinct creatures.

Of course, much has been done in the last decade to protect wildlife. Sanctuaries and reserves have been started to save these animals and birds. The reintroduction of a species into areas where it had become
